Let France, Italy Worry
We Have Our Troubles
Racketeering Profits
A Costly Thirst

By Arthur Brisbane

YOU MAY READ, "Washington fears that the hitch between Italy and France on their ship-planning program may be serious."

We have things in THIS country that are serious and ought to keep Washington busy, for instance, our millions of unemployed, a deficit of eight hundred million dollars which threatens the danger of discouraging business enterprise, employment and industry, by increasing taxation.

While Uncle Sam struggles with a deficit of $800,000,000, and his treasury worries about a few hundred millions of bonus for veterans, it may interest you to know where the "real money" goes.

The "racket" in fraudulent securities in New York State alone, according to the State Crime Commission, amounts to $400,000,000 a year. The United States district attorney for eastern New York says racketeers take from two to ten million a year, from almost every business in New York city.

The reward of racketeering in the United States, throughout the country, according to the crime commission, is $100,000 TWELVE TO THIRTY MILLION DOLLARS A YEAR.

That would more than run all the government expenses, including pensions, bond interest, army, navy, and amortization of the national debt, and leave billions to spare.

Racketeering, born of prohibition, seems to be an expensive institution.

The English dries say their nation's drink bill is $1,387,000,000. Dean Inge calls this shameful.

In England the kind of eat that cost seven cents before the war now costs 14 cents. That, the average Briton calls "shameful."

British spending is small compared with ours. The gloomy dean says we spend twelve thousand million dollars a year on amusements alone, including golf, cigarettes, chewing gum, and soda water, enough to pay all of England's expenses and wipe out the British debt.

The callous American, believe it or not, replies: "We would rather amuse ourselves with the twenty-one billions than use it to pay England's expenses and wipe out the British debt."

When racketeers learn that amusements in America cost several billion more than they collect, they probably will do something about it.

In England the national bill for alcoholic drink dropped $35,000,000 in 1930 compared with 1929. There is no drop in our prohibition country.

Also, fortunately for Britain, the British drop in consumption of whiskey and gin. Their inland program is a good one. If you must drink something with alcohol in it.

Russia asks why Japan doesn't answer a letter of protest and inquiry regarding the shooting of Paul Amalfi, Russia's commercial counselor to Japan.

Serious trouble between Russia and Japan would be regrettable now, with the world still licking its wounds from the big war and worrying about its depression.

Another Russian-Japanese war would not be like the last, when Japan was fighting grand duels that couldn't fight very well, nor supply very good ammunition. It would be a real war.

Russia would meet Japan today, a kind that would call for a real war. The Japanese extraordinary courage and resourcefulness.

The president of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, Mr. King Dykema, wishes the world to know that the Washington and Yakima districts of the United States have shipped five million apples to Washington apples. Wenatchee and Yakima, celebrating with Seattle, the accomplishment, shipping box No. 5,000,000 to Hainburg.

Other boxes, from the same state, have gone all over the world, and have brought to the owners of Washington apples more than six million dollars.

What is more important, they have helped to keep the health of millions that have eaten them.

"How few do breed a habit to a man! Things start small, and grow, fortunately for power companies, the A. T. & T., and other big enterprises."

BOSTON GIRL FACES JAIL AND FINE FOR 'INSULTING' TURKS

SCHOOL HEAD IS ACCUSED BY STUDENTS

American Director Says Question at Issue Was Decided by Pupils

Adana, Turkey, April 4 (AP)—Within the next few days the Turkish courts are expected to hand down a decision in the case of Grace Towner of Boston, director of the American girls' school here, who is charged with insulting the Turkish Nationalist government.

Miss Towner was accused of the offense after several students at the school protested that they had been forced to wear red, white and blue uniforms and the American teachers were carrying on a campaign of "Christian propaganda."

REFUSES TO CHARGE
The directors replied that red, white and blue uniforms were chosen after a student competition for suggestions which was held at the school, and that the complaint against her was made by students who suggested other designs and failed to win the contest, which, she said, was decided by the students themselves.

During the last of two hearings on Miss Towner's case the Turkish judge congratulated students who spoke in Miss Towner's defense for the clearness and logic of their testimony.

ACQUITTAL EXPECTED
A prominent Turkish lawyer, whose daughter was at the American school, volunteered to defend the American teacher, and the Turkish government's educational inspector at Adana went to the school personally and upheld the students who opposed Miss Towner. The Turkish government did not close the school.

American educational circles here believe Miss Towner will be acquitted. It is expected she would be subject to both fine and imprisonment under the Turkish law.

PATROL SINKS BRITISH BOAT

Commander M. J. Ryan, chief of the Coast Guard force at New London, Captain and crew of the British vessel were invited to present testimony.

The two vessels collided while the Legare was trailing the Symon, having relieved the coast guard destroyer Walcott, which it said to have been keeping the Symon under surveillance for several days.

The British craft was 90 feet long. Its mainmast had been stripped off, and it was conspicuous on the row, according to coast guards, and it was operating entirely by radio.

How many men were aboard the Symon is not known, but it is believed there were ten or more in addition to the captain, Aubrey Buchanan of Loughborough, N. H., and all were British citizens.

Coast Guard officials said the Symon had been cruising along the coast for some time and had long been on the suspect list.

The Coast Guard boat was in command of Lieutenant E. K. Middleton, who made a full report to Commander Ryan. The report pointed out that the Symon was carrying a full complement of crew, including a pilot, and that it was carrying a full complement of crew, including a pilot, and that it was carrying a full complement of crew, including a pilot.

DOROTHY KNAPP TO TAKE VEIL

New York, April 4 (INS)—Dorothy Knapp, stage beauty, today confirmed reports that she planned to take the veil as a nun in a Mexican convent.

She said she would complete her plans to go to Mexico, as soon as a suit of her $250,000 suit against a New York woman was ended. The suit, scheduled for hearing today, arose from Miss Knapp's removal from a New York play, which she backed by Mrs. Anne W. Penfield, who was named defendant by the actress.

A discussion of how to expedite criminal trials and cases appealed from the district courts featured the first quarterly meeting of the year between Atty.-Gen. Joseph E. Warner and several district attorneys today at the State House.

Atty.-Gen. Hugh A. Clegg of Lawrence, Thomas P. Moriarty of Springfield and Joseph T. Bartlett of Worcester were appointed as committee to study and report on this project.

To consider technical obstacles that delay trials and the matter of travel expenses, another committee was formed consisting of Dist. Atty. Wilbur A. Bishop of Cambridge and William C. Chrysler of Fall River.

The conference also appointed Dist. Atty. William J. Foley of Boston and Edwin G. Norman of Worcester as a committee to make recommendations on uniform classification of offenses and the rate of report from the various districts.

Millions, perhaps, heard the cries through Radio. The Columbia Broadcasting Company arranged for a national hookup for a word in the services, starting at 3 p. m. Central time, and ending as the cortège rolled over the hill toward the cemetery.

New York Republican politicians demand Theodore Roosevelt, second, for Vice-Presidential candidate, in place of Vice-President Curtis, on the 1932 ticket, with President Hoover.

They believe that a son of the original Theodore would get many votes, in country regions especially, and help to offset any big vote for Franklin D. Roosevelt, should the New York Governor be nominated by the Democrats.

Man Takes Church as Home; Faces Court as Nuisance

Waukegan, Ill., April 4 (AP)—If a man goes to church and stays there he may be guilty of malicious mischief.

This possibility arose when State's Attorney A. V. Smith filed a malicious mischief charge yesterday in the county court against Clarence Spiering.

Spiering moved his family and his dog into the Hickory Corner Methodist church at Antioch February 26 when his own home burned down, and has since refused to move, contending the church authorities forfeited their right to take through failure to hold regular services.

With Nels Ferraro, 20, of Shrewsbury st., she was charged with stealing $250 from Albert Lovely, 45, married, of Tremont st., during an auto ride in which he was piloted with liquor which he believed was "doped."

She admitted she embraced Lovely with one arm and kissed him while she took his money with the other, but she said she got only $80. She said she became frightened later at seeing a policeman, so instead of splitting with Ferraro, she fled in Springfield.

Ferraro, who was driving the car, did not plead guilty and his case was continued to April 10.

Argentine Goes to Polls Tomorrow

Buenos Aires, April 4 (AP)—Argentine tomorrow will make their first trip to the polls since the revolution. The election will be held only in the province of Buenos Aires to fill the provincial offices and elect deputies to the National Congress. Other provinces will have elections later and a presidential election will come still later.

It is unfortunate, but still true, that many of the major crimes today are perpetrated by juveniles. Boy robbers, boy murderers, even girl associates of thieves and killers, make up a large percentage of our national crime totals.

Therefore, to suppress all reference to these young desperadoes in the newspapers, as is provided in House Bill 1345, now in the State Senate, would be a decidedly dangerous procedure. It would, if adopted, defeat the very purpose intended by the well-intentioned but misguided persons who are responsible for its introduction.

This bill would punish by a fine of $500 the printing of any news whatever regarding juvenile criminals. It would punish with the same penalty any person who gives out to the public, or causes to become known, "the name, address, photograph or other information tending in any way to identify a juvenile offender or delinquent, or his parent or guardian, or any witness or party to any proceeding against such offender."

A little study of the provisions of this bill will show how far-reaching its enforcement would be. Robbers and killers could roam the streets at will without fear of public disgrace. A person bringing their depredations to the attention of the public would make himself immediately liable. Identification and capture of robbers by means of pictures printed in the newspapers, a common practice and a service gladly given by all newspapers, would be perpetually stopped. Hundreds of young criminals are caught each year by this very means.

Every newspaper of any sense of decency is ever careful to protect boys and girls who may have slipped once, or are guilty of indiscretions. Especially is this true when the reputations of young girls may be ruined through misfortune, rather than through any fault of their own. But protection of major crimes, or of habitual criminals of whatever age, would be a serious matter.

Under these circumstances, it is difficult to find any sense or reason whatever in this bill. It is equally difficult to understand how it could have passed the House and gotten into the Senate. Some one in the latter house, fortunately, was awake to the peril in this foolish piece of legislation and its defeat can now be anticipated.

An explanation from the House as to how this measure happened to slip through would be of interest, as throwing some light on the methods of transacting the public's business is carried on there. If obnoxious legislation can go through as easily as this apparently did, it might not be a bad idea to have a public defender appointed to look after the public welfare.

BARACADED IN GARAGE
The next hour the two officers, barricaded in the garage, were under an intermittent fire from the robbers.

The officers returned the shots of their antagonists, firing at the robbers' feet and legs, but the robbers were not deterred.

At length the snipers, apparently out of ammunition, were forced to cease fire. Several car tires had been hit.

Guards today were searching for the robbers in the vicinity of Wild Horse for the cache of loot from which the couple and the girl believed to have been with the robbers.

Customs authorities declared that both the identity of the men in the shack and the loot from which the snipers were taken, was a serious matter.

GIRL JAILED AS PETTING THIEF

Worcester, April 4—Mrs. Lovella Rockford, 21, of Springfield, stirred things up in District Court today with a story of how she combined love making and thievery.

She pleaded guilty to larceny, blamed a youth for planning it, disclaimed the latter's lawyer, and finally started for Sherborn reformatory to begin an indoctrination sentence.

With Nels Ferraro, 20, of Shrewsbury st., she was charged with stealing $250 from Albert Lovely, 45, married, of Tremont st., during an auto ride in which he was piloted with liquor which he believed was "doped."

She admitted she embraced Lovely with one arm and kissed him while she took his money with the other, but she said she got only $80. She said she became frightened later at seeing a policeman, so instead of splitting with Ferraro, she fled in Springfield.

Ferraro, who was driving the car, did not plead guilty and his case was continued to April 10.

Two men found.
In the shack they found two men, with evidence that a larger number had made a hasty departure.

Bringing into a garage in the rear, the officers found it piled high with cases of choice liquors, wrapped in water soaked burlap. Besides the liquors, valued at $20,000, was a 25-foot dory filled with wet rubber boots.

It was believed that a large number of men had recently finished carrying liquor and boot from the store, as the weight of the goods would require at least 25 men to carry it up to the beach without the aid of a dory.

Chief Mercer dispatched Hamilton to the beach for trucks and customs men.

FUSILLADE OF BULLETS
As Mercer and Conant emerged from the garage, a storm of bullets whistled over their heads. It was the opening shot of a fusillade that continued without slackening for half an hour.

When half the fire seemed to indicate that the smugglers had been driven off, Mercer sent two men. As Conant listened to the fusillade of bullets, he saw the ownership of the liquor, a fresh outbreak of firing came from the woods.

Conant braved the hail of bullets and was wounded. He was reloading his rifle when a bullet struck him in the right hand and a spray of bullets struck him, but did not penetrate.

U. S. T. REFUSE TO SINK BIG BATTLESHIP

Insists it Needs 35,000-Ton Vessel in Place of Smaller Ones Powers Allot It

Washington, April 4—The United States will insist upon maintaining the 35,000-ton battleship instead of replacing it with ships of 20,000 tons, as advocated by Great Britain, France and Italy.

This attitude was made plain following overtures from the diplomatic representatives of the three governments. The conversations were verbal and very informal, but the position of the United States was definitely outlined.

The United States, it was stated, holds that the 35,000-ton battleship, armed with 16 or 18-inch guns, is essential to defense.

This government was informed yesterday that the three European powers had reached an accord to favor future battleships of 20,000 maximum tonnage, as a measure of economy.

BOSTON STORES THROGGED BY SHOPPERS

Shopping crowds filled the streets and stores today as the last hours for buying Easter finery arrived. Overcast skies proved no discouragement to thousands for whom the period of depression seems to have ended. The promise of fair weather tomorrow spurred on the 11th-hour rush to buy.

Thronges were pouring from the subways and entering the downtown area by all other means of travel early this forenoon, and by noon it was a typical Easter Saturday.

The annual Easter parade on Commonwealth ave. and the fashion show in every New England city and town will be featured by the greatest displays of finery in history, according to business observers, judging from sales of the past two weeks.

Easter lilies and other flowers and plants were also in great demand, florists reporting exceptionally large volume of business.

Railroads, which have been bringing large numbers to Boston for the Spring shopping, were also carrying thousands away from the city today for Easter visits at home.

The weather bureau's forecast was generally fair for Greater Boston and all New England, with moderate northerly winds.

HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN!

By NICHOLAS YOUNG
THE FAMINE is over—ended or terminated, if you prefer. Make your own verbal choice. Following two weeks of almost nothing at all in the drama spoken and presented by men and women in person, the absent brother returns. If you read the play-bills you will see that he reappears in some force, all of which should be good news to the playgoer who has taken his Lenten diet in good spirit, even if a bit bewildered at the overwhelming absence of things to see, hear and talk about.

AT ANY RATE, starting today, the all-inclusive grip of the peaky cinema upon the town's playhouses ceases. There is quite a new play on the stage. There are new plays and old, all of them in what we have been accustomed to call flesh and blood, like possession of the theater of our downtown (theater) of fun and fantasy. The Lenten "pot" at the Wilbur, a new play of guns and racket, and "Death Takes a Holiday," which might be termed something of a resurrection. For the latter returns to the Plymouth for a single week as a tempting morsel.

BUT NOT EVEN in a rejuvenated drama is it possible to turn a sullen shoulder to the revival, for with "Cherrie Ripe" at the Colonial, two distinguished, even notable, figures of the drama of shadows invest the Colonial with talents most of us have been able to estimate only upon the flickering screen. Vilma Banky and Noel Lee Roque are the leaders of this particular invasion into areas controlled by the masters of legitimate entertainment.

OF THIS OLD SHOWS we must see again. Ed Wynne's "Simple Simon" and "Death Takes a Holiday" extend invitations to the harried playgoer that may be taken at face value—and without reservation. It is not generally known that "Simple Simon" has almost set a season's record. Of all the musical shows which tempted Fate with the road, Mr. Wynne's little entertainment from Mother Goose proved to be one of only two that has survived a grueling test. Originally a Ziegfeld production, "Simple Simon" failed to measure up to Ziegfeld standards in its New York run. Upon which it became the property of Mr. Wynne, and moved westward.

AT THAT TIME other good attractions were struggling—even staggering. Yet Mr. Wynne kept moving at substantial profit. Before the season was half covered, Wynne had but a single rival, Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book." Between the two was a divided honor and receipts, the shrinking season was willing to accord a strictly musical entertainment from wicked Broadway. To the credit of both, the season's storm was weathered. Although jolted by rough weather, "Simple Simon" and "Sketch Book," alone of all musicals, made profit in good order.

EASTER MUSIC PLAYED AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH
Rimsky-Korsakov's gorgeous overture, "The Russian Easter," and Wagner's Prelude to "Parsifal" set the seasonal mood at the opening of the program for this week's pair of Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts, led by Sergei Koussevitzky. The performance of the Russian music glowed at yesterday's matinee, and the audience was not properly appreciative. Wagner's unearthly music, independent of instrumentalists, standing on its own masterful legs, has not been performed here in we know not how many years. This beautiful playing was the more welcome yesterday.

The tragic forebodings and jubilant trumpet-soundings of Brahms' C minor Symphony ended the program. The performance was technically excellent; and if you agreed with Mr. Koussevitzky's term the reading was eloquent. But during the last section of the first movement—taken at a most deliberate pace yesterday—wondered whether the performance would be ended by dinner-time. The slow movement dragged at a snail's pace at the beginning, then was speeded up out of all proportion. The latter two movements Mr. Koussevitzky played more heavily "straight."

The piece of resistance was Hindemith's "Concert-Music" for string and brass orchestra, dedicated to the Boston Symphony Orchestra and given its first performance yesterday. We hesitate to write disrespectfully of the white hope of German ultra-modernism, whose compositions we have liked in the past. Even here he has shown a lyrical temperament that is undeniable, a mastery of individuality in part-writing, a great technical use of the instruments.

"Echoes of the Concert Hall," for alongside of his original ideas are reminiscences of the belated and most incongruous character. Beethoven of the Seventh Symphony Scherzo may be an earmark of good taste, but does this hard-bitten modernist stomach Lest of the Second Hungarian Rhapsody.

VILMA BANKY AND RICHIE LING

SOFT WORDS and the feminine career have ruined many a man. Here you see Miss Banky playing her arts upon Mr. Ling. He seems reconciled. Scene from "Cherrie Ripe" (Colonial).

THE GODDESS STILL LIKES TO DANCE

By GIL SQUIRES

The Bluebeard in "Simple Simon,"

The evolution of a dance is one of the most interesting issues in the production of a musical comedy. Dancing is as old as man himself. For dancing was a recognized art when the early Greeks started putting lovely audiences in charge of painting, music, literature and other arts. And dancing is still an art, though, under certain conditions it ranges from a drawing room collection of convoluted steps to a concentration of acrobatic feats and contortionist gyrations.

That last sentence I didn't frame. But it is true to the intricate nature of modern dancing and describes the unattainable requirements which the modern dancer must fulfill. In days gone by a dancer was a somewhat set thing. A gavotte was a gavotte, a minuet a minuet, and similarly each dance was classified according to melody, rhythm, time and style.

Nowadays, however, there are no such distinctions. For a modern dance is limitless in its possibilities. Indeed, the insatiable thirst of modern audiences for speed and novelty necessitates that a modern dancer do everything.

In the past, for instance, a ballet dancer never went in for high kicking. Yet unless the dancer in "Simple Simon" were able to do high kicks they could not put over the dance assigned to them. Then, too, ordinary interpretative dancing frequently culminated with acrobatic novelties.

Scollay Has Minstrelsy

The Scollay next week divides its stage show in two parts, the first known as a real old-time minstrel show, and the second a Broadway producer's idea of a futuristic minstrel show. Dan Pich, old-time minstrel, is in Boston to produce the first, while Eddie Court, assistant to Dave Gould, is in charge of the modern and futuristic part of production.

Included in a most imposing array of talent are Buddy Walker, Marie and Ann Clark, Day and Nace, Lew Wilson, and a score of others. Such a variety of music and lighting effects have been presented as the week in vaudeville circles, from coast to coast, in Players and Patrons' Jubilee Week.

Dan Pich, old-time minstrel, is in Boston to produce the first, while Eddie Court, assistant to Dave Gould, is in charge of the modern and futuristic part of production.

Included in a most imposing array of talent are Buddy Walker, Marie and Ann Clark, Day and Nace, Lew Wilson, and a score of others. Such a variety of music and lighting effects have been presented as the week in vaudeville circles, from coast to coast, in Players and Patrons' Jubilee Week.

THE GODDESS STILL LIKES TO DANCE

By GIL SQUIRES

The Bluebeard in "Simple Simon,"

The evolution of a dance is one of the most interesting issues in the production of a musical comedy. Dancing is as old as man himself. For dancing was a recognized art when the early Greeks started putting lovely audiences in charge of painting, music, literature and other arts. And dancing is still an art, though, under certain conditions it ranges from a drawing room collection of convoluted steps to a concentration of acrobatic feats and contortionist gyrations.

That last sentence I didn't frame. But it is true to the intricate nature of modern dancing and describes the unattainable requirements which the modern dancer must fulfill. In days gone by a dancer was a somewhat set thing. A gavotte was a gavotte, a minuet a minuet, and similarly each dance was classified according to melody, rhythm, time and style.

Nowadays, however, there are no such distinctions. For a modern dance is limitless in its possibilities. Indeed, the insatiable thirst of modern audiences for speed and novelty necessitates that a modern dancer do everything.

In the past, for instance, a ballet dancer never went in for high kicking. Yet unless the dancer in "Simple Simon" were able to do high kicks they could not put over the dance assigned to them. Then, too, ordinary interpretative dancing frequently culminated with acrobatic novelties.

Mary Lou Dreams of Being at Home

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR
Mary Lou Thurston, a beautiful and vivacious girl of the "home" type, orphaned by the death of her parents, lives with her aunt and uncle, Clara and Howard Henderson. The former is private secretary to a publisher, and the latter an engineer. Larry Mitchell, energetic young newspaper reporter, is Mary Lou's pal. Her aunt gets a wonderful business chance to go to the Orient and take his wife as secretary. Mary Lou is to stay immediately with Grandma Jenkins, Clara's mother.
Larry is eager to marry Mary Lou, and takes care of her, but Mary Lou convinces him they are nearly good pals and asks him to help her get a job. She applies at the Lorraine's and is chosen by the son of the house as his var bride, named "Delight." Mary

"TRAVERS is asleep," she reported, "and Peter says he ate practically nothing for dinner." She sighed and added, as if her son were still a stubborn five-year-old, refusing his spinach and baked apple. "He won't eat much—or properly—at any time."

Mary Lou widened her eyes.
Her own appetite was so normal
that it was hard for her to understand one whose appetite was not.

"He's missing a lot!" announced
Mary Lou. A little later they went up stairs to their adjoining rooms, and Mary Lou found, in her own an exquisite nightgown of pale peach crepe-de-chine with a matching negligee and slippers.
In the bathroom a new tooth brush waited here and there silver brushes and combs on the bureau had been made ready for her.

Sat by Fire

She had undressed, and bathed and was tucking her pins into before the little fire flicked in the grate. She looked down at Mrs. Lorraine's knitted and tail and lovely in clinging slippers of mauve and silver.

"To say good night. Will you be quite comfortable?"
she asked. "I think I'll have someone sent out with slippers from the shop to wear I can't wait to be free to be to these ourselves," she laughed, excellent flushing her smooth cheeks with color. "And I've been decided for pyjamas
you instead of nightgowns?"

"I don't know what you mean, I've mentally selected for you."

"The book Mary Lou's bands as the girl rose, and bent forward her head to her lips to the fragrant young cheek."

"Sleep well," said Mrs. Lorraine.
"I've given you new hope," she said here.

Crisp Air

A little later Mary Lou lay in bed and brushed the curls that which sufficed the curtains at the windows. She was tired and relaxed and drowsy. But she couldn't sleep yet, there was so much to think about.

Cinderella and the Bigger Mail of King Cophatua—when felt the kinds of them rolled into one. Tomorrow, tomorrow she faced the dark side of the fairy tale fabric. Tomorrow she faced a certain unmet reality.

"I want to be kind of it," she told herself. "I have to give it everything in me. I have to see it through. For her sake, looking if one could have discovered her beauty like the stars, like the beauty than like Cinderella."

Mary Lou awoke on the following morning and lay for a moment, drowsily watching the early sunlight creep through the curtains.

CURLEY TO FIGHT FOR $31,000,000

Dist. Atty. Foley to Push Probe of Garrett Jury

MAJOR TO GET HEARING ON CITY BILLS

Foreshadowing of the Airport Appropriation and
Other Needed Sums

Mayor Curley will get another opportunity before the joint legislative committee on Municipal Finance in executive session next Monday to plead for his municipal projects which were slashed by the committee.

With the total appropriation cut by the numerous bills amounting to approximately $21-$22,000,000, the bulk of these projects, all outside the debt limit, was petitioned for by individual members of the legislature. The committee eliminated all but $2,000,000 of these.

On of the important projects that the mayor desires to have put through is the airport development at Logan Island. In view of the fact that an agreement has been reached for Monday and Tuesday the sum of $1,250,000 was asked for the project. The committee resolved to $250,000. William P.
Loy, chairman of the public commission, said if the committee permits it is essential to give the full amount and is upheld by the Legislature nothing can be done to save the facilities of the airport
this year.

The two chairmen of the joint legislative committee said today they were reluctant to give the mayor another opportunity to be heard.

REPLY TO CRITIC

Senator Samuel H. Wadsworth
said:

"I will call a meeting of the committee for Monday and ask members if they wish to hear the mayor again."

"I am in favor of hearing the mayor," said Mr. Wadsworth.
"I am in favor of hearing the
mayor," said Mr. Wadsworth.

Birmingham scored the committee for holding its executive session in a committee room at the State House. While discussing economy, Birmingham argued, the committee was enjoying a $250 dinner at the expense of the State.

There was no reason why the committee could not have held its session in a committee room at the State House.

trict Attorney W. J. Foley into the today after an interlude of one day.

It is expected the district attorney will confer with Judge Elias M. Bishop some time next week regarding the matter of contempt proceedings against certain persons in the case.

to bail has been made as yet by his attorney, Herbert F. Callahan.
Although such action is expected.

expected to fight such a motion.

known who will be the judges in this session.

PRICE OF COAL TAKES A DROP

The price of coal in Boston generally is expected to follow a new schedule issued by one of the city's largest coal companies, effective Monday.

The largest reductions in price for last year's figures are for the larger size of coal, with less reduction for the smaller grades.

Price of coal will be cut $1.35 to $15 per ton; stove $1.50 to $15.25; and net $1.00 to $15.25.

The smaller cut for the smaller grades is due to the increase in demand for them.

Operators' prices are expected to be on a sliding scale during the five months beginning May 1st. The advance have taken place, the larger sizes, such as egg stove and nut coal are expected to remain 25 to 25 cents below
last year's prices.

The State Flower Mission, under the auspices of the Massachusetts
W. C. T. U., distributed 750 flower baskets to the sick and needy throughout Greater Boston today.

More than 100 volunteer women workers under the direction of Mrs. Samuel W. Simpson, visited homes of consumptive and cancer patients, aged and infirm people, leaving baskets heaped with foodstuffs and delicacies. In each basket was a potted plant.

Easter Volume Should Encourage Merchants to Change Policies
By R. C. Forbes

New York, April 1.—Retail trade in New York, it is said, has been quite brisk. However, there has been no complaint about the merchants.

Many stores are declared to be under-manned, raising a question as to whether the volume of business has been as large as it is reported to be. This complaint is particularly in higher priced lines. This complaint, I have heard, is not often made. I am convinced it must be true. I was to sell from samples.

It is a common comment that the Easter volume is not as big as it was in the past. It is a common comment that the Easter volume is not as big as it was in the past. It is a common comment that the Easter volume is not as big as it was in the past.
